Report of the Working Group on Arbitrary Detention on its mission to Azerbaijan: comments by the State*

General comments

The visit by the Working Group on Arbitrary Detention to the Republic of Azerbaijan, which took place in accordance with the standing invitation of the country on 16-25 May 2016, was considered in the context of further enhancement of constructive cooperation between Azerbaijan and relevant UN mechanisms. As a sign of openness and willingness for constructive engagement, the Azerbaijani side organized all requested meetings of the Working Group with authorities, as well as created necessary conditions for it to meet with persons in detention upon its request.

We appreciate the position of the Working Group reflected in its report regarding the cooperative spirit of the Government of Azerbaijan during the preparation and organization of the visit.

Azerbaijan is ready to continue dialogue and interaction with UN human rights mechanisms on the basis of mutual respect and understanding, and the extension of standing invitation to UN special procedure mandate holders is an example of Azerbaijan's constructive approach to this end.

Azerbaijan is continuing enhanced interaction with UN Human Rights Council and Office of the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights. Close cooperation has been pursued also with UN treaty bodies through regularly submitting reports on measures taken to ensure and promote the rights and freedoms stipulated in international instruments.

Systemic and wide range of legal reforms are being pursued by Azerbaijani authorities to ensure human rights and fundamental freedoms in the country. One of the most recent steps to this end has been the Executive Order signed by the President on February 10th, 2017 aiming at furtherance of legal reforms in penal field and humanization of penal policies. The Executive Order represents a roadmap for further improvement in the operation of penitentiary institutions, elimination of shortcomings within their activities and exclusion of cases of corruption in the field of criminal proceedings and execution of sentences, and humanization of penal policies in the country. It has taken into account best practices of advanced nations and provisions of international instruments in the field of human rights. The Executive Order also addresses many questions raised by the European Court of Human Rights in its case-law, in particular those taken with respect to Azerbaijan.

One of the objectives of the Executive Order is a wider use of non-custodial means for the purposes of justice, and it has instructed to establish the Probation Service within the Ministry of Justice and to introduce information and communication technologies for enforcement of sentences. To this end, use of electronic ankle tracking devices shall be introduced in execution of sentences and application of measures of restraint.

According to the Executive Order, judicial and law enforcement authorities shall consider drafting the following laws within short time:

- decriminalisation of certain crimes;
- provision of the sentences alternative to imprisonment in the criminal legislation;

* Reproduced as received.

- development of grounds for non-custodial measures of restraint and sentences alternative to imprisonment;
- wider application of institutions of substitution of remainder of imprisonment by lighter punishment, parole and suspended sentence;
- further promotion of application of measures of restraint alternative to arrest;
- simplification of rules for amendment of arrest by alternative measures of restraint; and
- further limitation of grounds for arrest for low-risk or less serious crimes.

The President has also recommended to the judicial authorities to refuse from general practice of arresting individuals and to refer mostly to alternative measures of restraint.

Based on the proposals of the Working group comprised of representatives of the Supreme Court, Prosecutor General's Office, Ministry of Justice and Ministry of Interior, which had been established to ensure implementation of the instructions and recommendations of the Executive Order, the draft law encompassing comprehensive amendments to the Criminal Code was elaborated and already submitted to the Milli Mejlis (National Parliament) of the Republic of Azerbaijan upon the initiative of the President of the Republic of Azerbaijan at the end of June 2017. This largest – by its scope, conceptual and regulative nature – package of proposals covers a number of issues, including introduction of alternative sanctions, liberalisation of the legislation with respect to a number of crimes against property and economic crimes, improvement of institution of friendly settlement with the victim of crime, decriminalisation of a number of offences and others.

Specific comments

II Program of the visit

Paragraph 6:

The temporary detention places (TDP) consist of two parts, the detention cells of arrested or detained persons and service-technical rooms, as well as investigation, visiting, recognition, medical, storage, kitchen and other rooms. Opportunities were created for access of the members of the Working Group to temporary detention places, especially detention cells of the arrested or detained persons without hindrance. In some cases, technical household rooms were not accessed, since they were closed, at the same time, the members of the Working Group did not request these rooms to be opened.

III Overview of the institutional and legal framework

A. Political system and institutional framework

Pursuant to the article 7 of the Constitution, state power in the Republic of Azerbaijan is based on a principle of division of powers:

- Milli Mejlis of the Republic of Azerbaijan exercises legislative power;
- executive power belongs to the President;
- courts exercise judicial power.

According to provisions of the Constitution executive, legislative and judicial powers interact and are independent within the limits of their authorities.

Paragraph 7:

The recent referendum took place on 26 September 2016 in the Republic of Azerbaijan, and a number of important changes were made to the Constitution. One of those changes was related to the term in office of the President of the Republic of Azerbaijan. Thus, according to the change made to Part I of Article 101 of the Constitution, the President of the Republic of Azerbaijan is elected for a term of 7 years.

In accordance with paragraphs 10 and 15 of Article 95 of the Constitution, appointments to the above-mentioned posts are within the powers of the Parliament, upon the nomination by the President of the Republic of Azerbaijan.

Paragraph 8:

In accordance with Article 4 of the Law on Courts and Judges, the cases are considered in the first instance (general and specialized courts), appeal and cassation (Supreme Court) courts. At the same time, this Law was amended by the Law 1043-IIIQD of 22 June 2010, replacing local economic courts with administrative-economic courts.

Paragraph 9:

According to the Decree of the President of 19 January 2006, Baku, Ganja, Sumgait, Shaki, Shirvan appeal courts have been established. Moreover, Supreme Court of Nakhchivan Autonomous Republic is also acting as an appeal instance court, according to Article 52 of the Law on Courts and Judges.

The “territorial jurisdiction of the courts of appeal, grave crimes, military and administrative-economic courts of the Republic of Azerbaijan” was approved by the decision of the Judicial-Legal Council of 11 April 2017. In addition to the Baku Court of Appeal, this decision determined the jurisdiction of the Ganja, Shaki, Shirvan and Sumgayit courts of appeal.

In accordance with Article 1 of the Law on the Constitutional Court, the Constitutional Court of the Republic of Azerbaijan is the supreme judicial administration body with respect to issues within its powers, as identified by the Constitution.

According to Part V of Article 130 of the Constitution, any person claiming that his rights and freedoms were violated as a result of decisions of legislative, executive and judiciary authorities may appeal to the Constitutional Court.

Besides that, the courts can solicit the Constitutional Court to comment on the respective provisions of the Constitution and laws of the Republic of Azerbaijan related to exercising human rights and fundamental freedoms. The Ombudsman of the Republic of Azerbaijan can as well file a request with the Constitutional Court to consider the compliance of normative acts of the legislative and executive bodies with acts of higher legal power.

In general, over 50 laws (including, the Laws on the Rights of Child, on Approving the Regulation on cases of minors and protection of their rights, on Neglecting minors and prevention of rights violation, on Combating Human Trafficking) on the rights of children have been adopted, various decrees, decisions and orders have been signed by the President and the Cabinet of Ministers.

In addition, Azerbaijan has joined international documents such as the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child of 20 November 1989, the UN Standard Minimum Rules for the Administration of Juvenile Justice of 29 November 1985 (The Beijing Rules), the Optional Protocol on the Sale of Children, Child Prostitution, and the Utilization of Children in Pornography and the Optional Protocol on the Participation of Children in Armed Conflict of the UN Convention of the Rights of the Child, the UN Convention against Transnational Organized Crime of 12 December 2000, and the Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children and the Protocol against the Smuggling of Migrants by Land, Sea and Air, supplementing this Convention.

Even though currently there are no specialized juvenile courts, main criteria covered by the juvenile justice concept of protecting the minors' rights are reflected in the national legislation:

1. Features of bringing juveniles to criminal liability;
2. Conducting preliminary investigation and trial in respect of juveniles;
3. Features of sentencing and execution;
4. Various provisions on improving detention conditions of juveniles.

Thus, characteristics of pre-trial procedure in respect of children, as well as characteristics of procedure of first, appeal and cassation instances are determined by the Criminal Procedure Code. Chapter 50 of this Code is named "Characteristics of procedure in relation to juveniles," and the procedure in the first instance, appeal and cassation courts is carried out in accordance with the provisions of this Chapter and general rules envisaged in this Code.

Article 42 of the Law on the Rights of Child also includes related provisions. Thus, in that article it is noted that characteristics of the pre-trial procedure, as well as first instance, appeal and cassation court procedures in relation to children are determined by the Criminal Procedure Code.

Moreover, Chapter 15 of the Code of Execution of Punishments is entitled "Characteristics of minor convicts serving the sentence of imprisonment," and regulates related issues. Article 30 of the Law on Ensuring the Rights and Freedoms of Persons Held in Places of Detention, entitled "Characteristics of Holding Minors in Places of Detention," determines the requirements of holding such persons in places of detention.

In addition, Article 197 of the Civil Procedure Code regulates procedures for questioning a minor witness. While Article 1.4 of that Code directly prescribes that procedural legal norms envisaged in other laws shall comply with this Code's provisions.

At the same time, a close cooperation is implemented with UNICEF Office in Azerbaijan to address issues related to protecting the rights of children and supporting juvenile justice reforms. Joint action plans have been signed with the UNICEF since 2008 to this end. The action plans include measures such as carrying out reforms in administration of justice in relation to minors, organization of awareness-raising, improving legislation in this field, studying international experience, carrying out training programs for law enforcement employees, creating court room models fitting children's needs and etc.

Changes were made to "Instructions on conducting clerical work in the courts of Azerbaijan," and two groups of judges were determined at the Baku Court on Grave Crimes to review the cases of minors. In the same way, a court room equipped with technical appliances and a courtroom appropriate for children (witnesses and victims) were set up. Training courses at the Academy of Justice on juvenile justice and study visits abroad were organized for those judge groups. Taking into account this successful experience, creation of similar court rooms for children at the courts under-construction is planned.

Paragraph 10:

In accordance with Article 4 of the Law on Prosecution, the prosecution shall in accordance with circumstances and procedure envisaged by law:

- Open a criminal case and conduct primary investigation, also conduct operational search for the purpose of launching a criminal case or conducting investigation;
- Lead procedural inquiry on the criminal case and ensure compliance with the law;
- Supervise over execution and application of laws in the work of the investigation and operational-search organs;

Recommendations in relation to the criminal justice system, fundamental legal safeguards, and access to legal counsel:

The Law on the Fight against Terrorism, dated June 18, 1999, is the main domestic legal document for combating terrorism. This law determines the legal and organizational guidelines for combating terrorism in the Republic of Azerbaijan, the mechanism for inter-agency co-operation between the state bodies in charge of anti-terrorism operations, as well as the rights and duties of those bodies and individual citizens. It has 5 sections and 22 articles. The law contains and interprets definitions of "terrorism", "terrorist", "terrorist group", "terrorist organization", "terrorist activity", "international terrorist activity", "financing of terrorism", "fight against terrorism", "operations against terrorism" etc. This law defines "terrorism" as the "perpetration of explosions or fires or commission of other acts which threaten to endanger the lives of people, injure their health, cause substantial damage to property or give rise to other socially dangerous consequences with the aim of disturbing public order, sowing panic among the population or influencing the adoption of decisions by the organs of State power or international organizations, and also the threat of committing such acts with the same aim"

The appropriate amendments to the law "On Fight Against Terrorism" and the Criminal Code, introduced in accordance with Law No. 332-IIQD "On Amendment of Some Legislative Acts of the Republic of Azerbaijan following the enforcement of law of the Republic of Azerbaijan "On Accession of the Republic of Azerbaijan to the International Convention for the Suppression of the Financing of Terrorism"" of 17 May 2002, made the punishment for terrorist activity {article: 214) and for deliberate disinformation about terrorism (article: 216) more severe and prescribed the inclusion of a new article introducing criminal liability for the financing of terrorism (Article: 214-1).

A number of legislative amendments made to the domestic legislation was related to the Council of Europe Convention on the Prevention of Terrorism” signed in Warsaw on May 16, 2005 approved by the Law of the Republic of Azerbaijan of February 03, 2014 No.891-IVQ. For implementation of the Warsaw Convention to the Criminal (domestic) Legislation by the Law of the Republic of Azerbaijan of March 04, 2014 No.919-IVQD, the new articles which provide criminal liabilities such as "Public appeals to terrorism" (article: 214-2) and “Conducting exercises with a terrorism purpose” (article: 214-3) were included into the Criminal Code.

Thus, along with such crimes as terrorist activity, financing of terrorism and deliberate disinformation about terrorism, also in the criminal legislation of the Republic of Azerbaijan was established criminal liability for offences such as public appeals to terrorism and conducting exercises with a terrorism purpose.

At the same time, there were defined forms of the responsibilities and criminal-legal actions which will be applied to the legal persons for the connection to terrorist offences according the amendments to the criminal legislation.

The Law of the Republic of Azerbaijan "On the prevention of the legalization of criminally obtained funds or other property and the financing of terrorism” dated 10, 2009 defined monitoring mechanism that obtains the controlling actions by the financial monitoring organ and normative content of the prevention of the legalization of criminally obtained funds or other property and the financing of terrorism definitions was specified in this law.

On 10 February 2017, President of the Republic of Azerbaijan signed an Executive Order on improving work in the penitentiary system, humanization of the punishment policy and expansion of alternative punishments and procedural enforcement measures not associated with isolation from society. The purpose of the Executive Order is to renew the approach to penal policy, criminal legislation, the issues regarding ensuring of the convicts’ rights, as well as improvement of functioning of penitentiary system and application of progressive international experience in this field. Being a program-type document, by defining strategic goals this Executive Order is a roadmap for courts, justice, prosecution authorities and investigative agencies.

Working group comprised of representatives of the Supreme Court, Prosecutor General’s Office, Ministry of Justice and Ministry of Interior was established to ensure implementation of the instructions and recommendations given in the Executive Order. A number of changes to the legislation are envisaged in the Executive Order, including those related to decriminalization of crimes in the economic sphere, addition of sanctions for crimes alternative to deprivation of liberty, wider application of existing alternative punishments, release on parole and conditional sentencing, and use of preventive measures alternative to arrest. Relevant draft laws have already been prepared by a joint group of the Ministry of Justice, the General Prosecutor’s Office and the Supreme Court.

Few years ago the Supreme Court summarized the judicial practice associated with selecting arrest as a restraining measure, introduced the summary at a plenary session and adopted a detailed resolution. In addition, courts were advised to be sensitive to this issue, and to widely use measures alternative to detention in accordance with the requirements of the European Convention on Human Rights and the criminal procedure legislation. Moreover, for gross violations in this area, about 30 judges and prosecutors were brought to strict disciplinary liability and three judges had their powers terminated.

In order to implement the recommendations given in the Order in this regard, the Supreme Court has recently reviewed and summarized judicial practice and the results has been discussed broadly at the Plenary Session. In the Session it was recommended to the preliminary investigation authorities and the courts to strictly comply with the requirements of criminal procedural legislation when applying procedural enforcement measures widen the use of punishments and preventive measures not associated with deprivation of liberty in order to achieve the purposes of punishment and restrictive measure without isolating the person from society.

One of the main novelties of the Order is connected with the use of modern electronic means of monitoring in the course of execution of punishments and application of preventive measures. The use of such devices will create conditions for a wider application of measures of restraint and punishment that do not involve isolation from society. In order to apply “electronic bracelets” in our country, international experience was studied and a presentation of their various samples was conducted, relevant proposals were prepared to amend regulatory legal acts regarding the mentioned issue.

Upon the Order, to organize the effective control over the execution of punishments not related to deprivation of liberty and increasing the efficiency of the management in this field, the establishment of the Probation Service under the Ministry is envisaged. In order to use international experience in this field, employees of the Ministry are sent to foreign countries to get acquainted with the models existing in the world. A package of specific proposals has already been prepared on the organization of this service in our country. Within the framework of a project to support the development of the justice system being implemented by the Ministry of Justice in cooperation with the European Union, pilot projects are being prepared in our country related to setting up the Probation Service, conducting training courses for employees and the use of electronic monitoring of convicts.

Significant instructions were given in the Order in view of increasing the importance of the community works as punishment not associated with deprivation of liberty. In this regard, necessary measures are being taken by the Ministry, including the draft law determining the liability of officials for allowing convicts to evade punishments in the form of community works.

Also, the Order gave concrete instructions in respect of modernization of the penitentiary field, updating the infrastructure, increasing supervision over detention conditions of convicts, broadening the production areas, forming a corps of professional staff, and effective organization of establishments’ security.

Moreover, the Order prescribes to ensure that in Settlement Colonies sentences are served in accordance with the procedure envisaged in the Enforcement of Punishments Code and that convicts strictly comply with the regime rules, as well as to prevent conditions for corruption and other negative circumstances in this area.

Mr. Mykola Gnatovskyy, President of the European Committee for the Prevention of Torture (CPT), who recently paid a visit to the country, valued Azerbaijani President’s Executive Order Azerbaijan as the cornerstone of the new penal policy, emphasizing that this document’s essence fits the purposes of the Committee and that it will serve the improvement of the penitentiary system and reliable protection of the sentenced persons’ rights.

In order to enable convicts to serve their sentences closer to their places of residence, significant works were conducted to create penitentiary infrastructure in various regions of our country; Baku Pre-Trial Detention Facility, modern penitentiary complexes in the Nakhchivan Autonomous Republic and in Shaki were built and opened for use. At present, such facilities are being constructed in Ganja and Lankaran, as well as in Zabrat Settlement of Baku for women and juveniles, and for lifers in Umbaki.

Successive steps were taken in recent years to improve the quality of healthcare for prisoners, high achievements were reached in this area in close cooperation with international organizations, including in the fight against tuberculosis among inmates, which is exemplary for other states. It is no coincidence that in the last 20 years the number of deaths decreased significantly, while the number of deaths due to tuberculosis decreased 100 times.

Special attention is being paid in Azerbaijan to the application of parole. For the purpose of eliminating negative circumstances in application of parole, ensuring collegiality, objectivity and transparency, in 2013 the Ministry established a special Commission consisting of officials of the Ministry and the Penitentiary Service, as well as representatives of the public and rights defenders.

In the past period the Commission has deemed over 7 thousand convicts deserving to be released on parole or transferred to a prison with a more lenient regime; 97% of such cases reviewed by the courts were resolved positively. The minimum number of recidivism among prisoners released on parole shows objectivity of this process and that those convicts are on their way toward real correction. For the purpose of ensuring maximum transparency in the work of the Commission, the practice of inviting the parents and loved ones of sentenced persons to its meeting is being carried out. Recommendations made by the Public Committee in respect of this process shall be especially mentioned.

At the same time, on the initiative of the President of Azerbaijan important changes were made to the criminal legislation related to decriminalization of certain acts in the economic sphere. The Ministry of Justice has identified the circle of persons covered by the new law and sent motions to the courts regarding more than 1,700 convicts, many of whom were released from custody or had their sentences shortened.

In the framework of policy on the decreasing the number of persons kept in the penitentiary establishments, by the Decision of the Milli Majlis on the declaration of amnesty on the occasion of 28 May – Republic Day, 2,901 convicts and by 06.05.2016 Law of the Republic of Azerbaijan in relation with the decriminalization of certain crimes in the economic sphere, 99 convicts were released from penitentiary establishments. At the same time, during 2016, 1,503 convicts were released from custody on parole and 412 convicts were pardoned by 19.03.2017 Executive Order of the President of the Republic of Azerbaijan. Mentioned measures not only influenced positively to the decrease of the number of convicts, but also it created suitable opportunity for their placement in accordance with the legislation.

Pardon and amnesty acts are widely applied in Azerbaijan. Since regaining independence in 1991, 62 Pardon Acts were signed by the President, which covered 6,907 persons overall. Moreover, 11 Amnesty Acts approved by the Milli Majlis covered 117,707 persons in total.

The meetings of convicts and detainees with their family members are regulated by the Code on Execution of Punishments and Law on the rights and freedoms of individuals kept in detention facilities. A number of such meetings are determined for detainees 4 times a month for duration of up to 4 hours and the number of meetings (short-term and long-term) for convicts depends on the type of prison regime set by the judgment of the court. At the same time, if convicts are placed to the improved detention condition as an incentive measure in the manner prescribed by legislation, the number of their rights to meeting increases. Furthermore, convicts may be provided with additional meetings as incentive measure for the exemplary behaviour.

According to Article 81.6 of the Code on Execution of Punishments, establishment administration enables close relatives of the convicts who suffer from serious health problems to visit them.

All persons admitted to places of detention and prisons are ensured with medical examination carrying out by relevant doctors who are not only subordinate to directors of the establishments. Such examinations are carried out confidentially taking into account the gender, and the results are included in the medical records.

Each admitted detainee or a convict is informed by the administration about their rights and freedoms and rules of detention conditions. At the same time, admitted persons have the right to get acquainted with the respective laws, legal acts in the libraries of establishments.

Legislation provides advocates with full independence. These are protection of advocate secrecy, response of advocate inquiring, guarantees of representative rights and etc. Moreover liability of the advocates is overseen by Advocates Board which is non-governmental, independent and self-regulated institution.

Recommendations in relation to allegations of torture and forced confessions

The Penitentiary Service pays a special attention to the issues of ensuring rights and freedoms of convicts and detainees, also immediate reaction to cases of their violation by the staff, corruption, torture and other degrading treatment and if necessary its strict investigation is ensured. In order to provide information regarding torture and other degrading treatment, also corruption boards reflecting the contact numbers of “Hotline” of the Service was put on the entrance and in the area of the penitentiary establishments. If criminality of a crime is determined during internal investigation conducted regarding letters received on these cases, collected materials are presented to prosecution authorities. During 2016, relevant investigations were conducted regarding 22 letters on 8 cases relating to torture and other degrading treatment; nevertheless, indicated circumstances and facts were not confirmed.

At the same time, according to legislation, detainees and convicts meet regularly with their close relatives, as well as other persons who are of interest to them, and their advocates correspond uncensored and they have a right to telephone calls 2 times a week. These rights are sufficient means to protect them from torture, inhuman and degrading treatment.

According to the Constitutional Law on “Ombudsman of Azerbaijan Republic” Ombudsman examines the complaints of the citizens, foreigners and persons without citizenship, legal persons on the violation of human rights.

Special attention is paid to the protection of the rights and freedoms which are identified in the Constitution and other legislative acts in the prosecution of criminal cases in the SSS. Rights of all persons participating in criminal process are ensured. No cases of torture, cruel, inhuman actions, other degrading behaviour by inspectors or senior officials towards convicts were registered. At the same time, no appeal, application or complaint has been filed regarding violation of rights relating to detaining conditions, undergoing torture or facing pressure, as well as concerning body injuries from themselves and their defenders.

Recommendations in relation to allegations of corruption

Topics on the fight against corruption, prevention of torture are included in the professional training programs for judges, judgeship candidates, prosecution, justice bodies and penitentiary service employees. In the framework of judicial-legal reforms, important legal and institutional measures were determined and implemented in order to combat corruption in the judicial work.

Termless appointment of judges, assessment of their activities by the independent body – Judicial-Legal Council, democratic bases of involvement in the disciplinary liability were prescribed in the new legislation.

Moreover, for the purpose of preventing corruption cases, reception of citizens by the judges was prohibited and publication of court decisions was envisaged in order to ensure transparency.

The Code of Ethical Conduct, regulating specific ethical requirements for judges, also their professional ethical issues, their conduct outside of their work, and determining their attitudes to their professional activity, was adopted by the Judicial-Legal Council; and a great importance was attached to following the rules of ethical conduct in evaluation of the activity of judges.

The number of judge positions was increased twice and the number of employees of court apparatus was increased by 75%, more than 300 well-prepared lawyers were selected and appointed to judge posts in accordance with new progressive rules valued as exemplary by influential European Institutions (including CEPEJ).

Regular improvement of judges' material provision, as well as, increase of wages up to 40 times, determination of additional guarantees for young judges, in general also the increase of budget of courts 26 times within the last 10 years, played an important role in the prevention of corruption cases in the work of courts.

At the same time, in order to ensure deep and professional examination of letters concerning offences related to corruption received by the Judicial-Legal Council, a special Sector on the investigation of letters regarding corruption is established at the Judicial Legal Council. 32 judges who gave rise to grave offences, as well as created artificial obstacles to the implementation of citizens' rights were disciplined seriously and powers of 6 of them were prematurely terminated, 4 of them were demoted and the workplaces of 7 of them were changed.

Moreover, substantial amendments were made to the legislation regulating the work of courts taking into account the international practice in the fight against corruption, the independence of the judiciary was further strengthened according to new laws adopted recently and its self-governance powers were broadened. According to amendments made to the Law on Judicial-Legal Council, prevention of meddling in judges' activity was referred to the powers of the Council, the role of the Council was increased in the appointment of judges, dismissing their powers, determination of budget of courts and reducing judges' wages was prohibited by the Law.

According to Law on Combating Corruption, offences related to corruption give rise to disciplinary, civil, administrative or criminal responsibility as provided for in the legislation.

Chapter 33 of the Criminal Code determines criminal liability for corruption crimes and other crimes that are against interests of public service. At the same time, various actual topics regarding fight against corruption were included into initial long-term training course of judge candidates.

Recommendations in relation to the juvenile system

In the framework of judicial-legal reforms conducted in the Republic of Azerbaijan, special attention is being paid to the development of juvenile justice, in close cooperation with the Azerbaijani Office of UNICEF. Since 2008, annual action plans are signed with UNICEF and necessary measures are taken for their execution.

Baku Court on Grave Crimes analyzes cases on crimes committed by minors or against them based on various criteria (the object of the crime, age of the accused persons and of the victims, gender and so on).

Taking into account the conducted analyses and Article 435.1 (criminal cases concerning offences committed by minors shall be examined by experienced judges) of the Criminal Procedure Code, it was proposed that the cases of minors (as accused persons and victims) shall be reviewed by more specialized judges and that this shall be first applied at the Baku Court on Grave Crimes as a pilot project. To this end, by the changes made to the "Instructions for conducting clerical work at the courts of the Republic of Azerbaijan", since 1 October 2014, a concrete list of judges to review cases of minors was determined. More judges were added to the list in April 2015, due to increase of the work load in this area. Technically equipped courtrooms and separate rooms for children were allocated at the Baku Court on Grave Crimes.

In order to improve the professionalism of the abovementioned judges in the field of juvenile justice, a training course with a specifically designed curriculum was held at the Academy of Justice with the involvement of well-known experts, lawyers and judges.

Preventive measure of arrest is applied to suspected and accused minors in exceptional cases and for the shortest period possible. Such persons are sentenced to fines, community works, correctional works, and imprisonment for a certain term (ten years maximum). In most cases, sanctions not associated with imprisonment are applied to juvenile criminals.

In accordance with legislation, in places of detention and in prisons, juveniles are kept separately from others. They are provided with maintenance, protection and other individual assistance based on their age, sex and personality traits.

Respective measures are being taken in order to provide better detention conditions for juvenile prisoners, general secondary education and vocational training, and involving them in socially beneficial labour and sports; also construction of the new modern establishment in the capital's Zabrat Settlement is underway.

Instead of transferring prisoners who have reached the age of 18 to prisons, it is preferred to detain them in the Correctional establishment for two more years. Sentence execution requirements, food norms and material provision determined for minors are applied to such persons as well.

There are a number of provisions in the relevant legislation regarding contacts (meeting, telephone calls and correspondence) of juvenile detainees and convicts with their parents and close relatives. At the same time, if necessary, juveniles are enabled to contact their parents urgently, who are informed immediately and are invited to the Correctional Institution.

The Criminal Code envisages provisions on the punishment of this kind of illegal acts towards any person without age difference.
